Biography

Richard Terrill [Dick] Baker was born in Coggan, Iowa, on March 27, 1913, and graduated from Cornell College (Iowa) in 1934. Combining journalism and religion, he studied for one year at the Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston, Ill, became assistant editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate in Chicago (1935-36) and obtained a Masters from the School of Journalism at Columbia University from 1936-37. Under a Pulitzer Traveling Fellowship he visited 32 countries in the Far East, Africa and the Middle East.

Baker attended Union Theological Seminary from 1938-1941 and received his BD magna cum laude. In 1940 he was ordained in Iowa as a deacon and in 1941 as a minister in the Methodist church. Baker was awarded an honorary Doctorate of Divinity by Cornell College (Iowa) in 1946. In 1940-46 he became the assistant editor of World Outlook. When the Chinese Nationalist Government established a joint journalism school with Columbia University, he served in China as one of five faculty members and acting dean, 1943-45.

For the following two years he wrote as a war correspondent for the Religious News Services and World Outlook. In 1947, at the age of 34, he became an associate professor at the Columbia University School of Journalism and full professor from 1952 to 1981. In 1950 he served as religious journalism advisor to West Germany on behalf of the U.S. State Department. In 1953-54 he took this year's absence from teaching to work as a reporter on the New York Times.

In 1961 he was appointed Associate Dean of the School of Journalism and became Acting Dean in the difficult 1968 - 1970 period. In 1976 Baker was elected secretary of the Pulitzer Prize Board.

Professor Richard Baker died at his home in Manhattan on September 4, 1981.
